

ABSTRACT

A data signal is modulated onto an optical carrier, sub-band channels are then removed therefrom by microresonators, and each data sub-band channel is then combined in a detector with a corresponding local oscillator optical signal removed by a microresonator from a frequency comb modulated onto another optical carrier.